DAYS GONE BY

In the refurbishment of the original buildings on Jules's great grandfather's farm, Elandskloof, (that came into the family in 1898) Jules was determined to maintain the original historical look and feel of the entire farm yard, including the two farm houses.

Thus, the buildings have lovingly been restored to their former glory.

One of the farm houses being built in the late 1800's and the other in the elegant and decadent 1950's.

We pride ourselves in being a working horse & cattle farm, thus it offers guests the unique opportunity of getting back in touch with Earth again & leave the buzz behind, if only for a few days.

The comforts of white goose down duvets, thick fluffy towels and freshly brewed coffee makes one feel like you're back at your grandma's house - tapping into the romance of yester years.

To many it feels like a step back in time, as each farm house only has a ladies and gents bathroom, a custom of the time - where scarcity of water did not (and still does not) allow for each guest to have their own bathroom.

(So, if en-suite bathrooms are an absolute necessity for you - we're probably not your stop.)
